

DATA ACT CONNECTED PRODUCT DATA DISCLOSURE

This Disclosure covers the following connected product(s):

- Dell PowerProtect DD Virtual Edition

Type, Format, and Estimated Volume of Product Data:

Note: As used in this Disclosure, “product data” means raw and pre-processed data generated by the use of a connected product that Dell has designed to be retrievable.

The connected product generates various types of product data, including:

- Metrics, Events, Alerts, Configuration, Telemetry, Direct Identifiers, Indirect Identifiers, Device Information, Preference Data, Session Data, Metadata, and Log Files

The data generated uses the following formats: JSON (.json), Text (.txt), and SQL (.sql)

The connected product generates approximately 300 MB of product data per day.

Continuous and Real-Time Data Generation:

The connected product continuously generates product data in real time.

Product Data Storage:

- On-Device Storage: The connected product stores product data locally on the device.
- Remote Storage: The connected product stores product data on remote, Dell-managed servers.

Duration of Retention of Remote Product Data:

Product Data stored within the software product is automatically purged after 45 days. If customers choose to share data with Dell via Telemetry (optional), that data is retained for 5 years. This retention period does not apply to product data that has been de-identified so that it does not identify any individual person or customer.

Access and Deletion of Data:

- Access: Users can review a copy of their product data currently in Dell’s possession by visiting the Dell Privacy Center and selecting Request Data Access, then choosing the EU Data Act request option. If product data is accessible directly on the device, instructions for doing so can be found in the product documentation.
- Deletion: If product data is accessible directly on the device, instructions for deleting it can be found in the product documentation.
